... Or a teacher telling you that you simply need to “apply yourself.”

We may not be too sure what exactly this “justice” consists of.

Having known many career military officers (3), almost every one of them has a commanding voice.

It would seem that the servant’s message will be their power.

You can see why Christian apologists look at the texts in Second Isaiah and see imagery of Jesus.

God is establishing a covenant relationship with anyone.

This “good news of peace” is not simply the absence of violence.

And he means not only vocalizing it, but giving witness, working to fulfill the good news (2) in peoples’ lives.

The good news voice is for healing and hope, for justice on God’s terms.
