You may be upset, too, but you probably realize that such drastic measures are our best and only real defense.

“I would rather die than kill the country.”

He added, “There are many things more precious than life.”

Those who want to play God (2) are sadly too prevalent.

The standard and natural answer would be, “No way!” (2)

They are mere bodies, still just corpses instead of living beings.

He doesn’t rush to be with Lazarus, but waits, lingering a few days.

Jesus has to identify himself to her directly.

Bystanders misread him; weeping is seen as a sign of Jesus’ love for Lazarus.

Sin and death appear like victors at this point, but Jesus is not done.

For when there is faith in Jesus, there is freedom from death, freedom for life.
