Hardship and gratitude are difficult bunk mates.

Forcing them into alignment isn't too effective either.

The hardships that they've endured were authored and approved by God.

You may not be in the Promised Land (2), but God's promise is bigger than that covenant.

However, this third instruction must have been a bit baffling.

God has pointed them toward the future.

The concern to continue building their families includes the raising up of new generations.

The stars only shine in the dark, true?

It was during the journey to the priests that they're healed.

A spirit of gratitude captivated him.

It's transformation for one who had not been among God's chosen people.

What Jesus said was: Rise and go; your faith has saved you.

Babylon may be a place of hardship and difficulty.
