Called a dysfunctional family, it avoids talking about certain things which reflect the truth.

The vision for a future together gets sacrificed on the altar of despair and cynicism.

This also means _____ that there will be _____.

That last line—'Peace, pace,' they say, when there is no peace—is the ultimate deceit (2).

God implores them to seek out that good way and walk in it.

God knows full well that it isn't simply those weak ones who are being ignored; God is being ignored, too.

Those would have been very popular messages, like the prosperity gospel (2) we hear from certain churches.

Jesus brings conflict and he know sit. Actually, he insists on it.

Of what priority are God's concerns to God's people?

Conflict resolution means engaging the issues and problems that exist with candor and a determination to address them.

Neither God nor Jesus imagine that this is easy, but both tells it is necessary
